

Warm your winter with Spice&Ginger

The holiday season is here!

The most magical season of the year is here! Crisp air, frosty mornings, and twinkling holiday lights — this is the time for warm spices, comforting meals and gathering with loved ones. I've been embracing the winter vibes with some festive cooking and I can't wait to share these cozy, winter-perfect recipes with you. I also have some stories from my recent trip to Devon, an enchanting part of England. From sustainable sheep farming in Dartmoor to the coastal beauty of South Devon, there's so much to discover.

Whether you're planning festive feasts or dreaming of peaceful countryside escapes, let's make this season one to remember!

Recipes

The cold days call for comforting flavors and hearty dishes. This month, I'm sharing recipes that are perfect for the season — whether you're hosting holiday dinners, enjoying quiet nights by the fire or exploring fresh and flavorful ideas for the new year. Let these recipes inspire your winter cooking!

Pakorras: India's vegetable fritters

Crispy on the outside and warmly spiced on the inside, pakoras are the ultimate winter snack. Enjoy them with a tangy dipping sauce or a steaming cup of chai for an irresistible treat.

Travel stories

As winter sets in, I'm looking back on my visit to Devon, England. It's a destination that captured my heart with its natural beauty and warm hospitality. Here are some highlights to inspire your future travels.

Come and discover the beauty of South Devon

From picturesque villages to stunning coastal walks, South Devon is a hidden gem for anyone looking to unwind and reconnect with nature. And don't miss the chance to sample the local food while you're there!
